This was the first time Indigenous People of the Americas were invited to participate as members of the UN. Through a series of speeches by members of the delegation, that conference produced the first draft of what would eventually become the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, and resolved “to observe October 12, the day of so-called ‘discovery’ of America, as an International Day of Solidarity with the Indigenous Peoples of the Americas.” Since 2014, Seattle has observed Indigenous Peoples’ Day, yearly on the second Monday of October.
